Death of an Estimable Lady. We chronicle elsewhere this morning the leath of Mrs. Annette D. Egan, wife of Capt. Ben. F. Egan, and second daughter of the late Capt. Joseph Miller. She died vesterday morning a quarter to 2 o'clock, after a protracted illness, which she bore with Christian fortitude. As much as she suffered during her illness, she never lost that joyous disposition which was her very nature throughout life. Even unto the very last moments of her existence, when she knew that her life at it were was hanging by a slender thread, she always had a cordial greeting for her friends; and her manner was as mirthful as when in her girlish days she was recognized as the pensing joy and happiness all around her. In her death, her friends have lost an estimable companion, while to her husband and children the loss is irreparable. Truly

The old one seems but a babe alongside of the new bell, and after a long and faithful performance of duty in the de partment, it will now be transferred to one of the other enginehouses, where it will continue in the good service. It has not been impesched, but simply superseded as

THE ESCAPE OF CONVICTS

More Prisoners Recaptured Ten Convicts at Large. Full and Authentic Particulars.

From Mr. John Chumbiy, Warden of the Penitentiary, who rett. ned yesterday from he Battle Creek mines, we have received ull particulars in reference to the recent As stated in yesterday's paper, twenty-ten have been retaken.

The following is a full account of the affair: Sixty convicts in all were employed in the Battle Creek mines in getting out coal, all of whom were negroes. The mine has two entrances on the main front, and negroid to the same convicts were negroed in the Sattle Council of the Swiss Confeder tion, the office of Consul for the State.

Tennessee, and especially the city Nasiville, should be erected, as the constant of the sattle const one party of convicts were employed in one section of the mine, reached by one of these entrances, and another body in the part reached by the second entrance. Stringent regulations had been established, and the convicts were only allowed to come notice of their approach. From what af-terwards transpired, it is evident that a conspiracy had been formed by the convicts to rush out en masse, over-power the guards, and thus escape. There were only two guards, who were stationed properly armed, about midway between the two entrances to the mine. Just before the delivery took place, a convict came near the mouth of one entrance and told the goard that he wished to go into the other part of the mine to get some oil for the lamps. He was al-lowed to go in at the other entrance, and ired.

The spectators seemed delighted with the evening's entertainment. The special seemed delighted with the evening's entertainment. The special seemed delighted with the evening's entertainment. the evening's entertainment. The pupils viets rushed out from one of the nearly all are but beginner; in the terpsinearly all are but beginner; in the terpsi-chorean art, and yet they show a progress which is alike creditable to them and to the teacher. Prof. Cleveland is well known throughout the South, and comes to our city endorsed as an accomplished gentleman. He was a Southern soldier during the war, left wife and children to was shot in the leg, an artery was thereby J. Fassler, Appenzell; J. empty gun that fall from the name of the dying negro, and carried it off. The same guard who had fired his gun, then discharged five shots from his revolver.

The convicts employed in the other part of the mine, and whom the negro who undoubtedly aimed to escape with the rest, but the notice appears to have been given too late, as after the guard referred had fired off all his shots, he presented the muzzle of his empty gun at the other ntrance and told the convicts not to come out, or he would kill the first one he saw. They undoubtedly supposed his gun to be loaded, as they remained inside. Those who had escaped ran off in all directions, and scattered about in gangs over the sur-ounding country.

We will here state that both of the guards behaved courageously under the circumstances, and were assisted by two negro onvicts, who probably on account of previous good behavior were allowed more privileges than the rest, and who were outside of the mines when the others oscaped. doubtedly saved the life of one of the guards, or at least prevented him from bethe act of drawing a heavy pick on the guard. In yesterday's issue we stated that ten

Chumbley informs us that eight additional convicts have been secured, making eighteen that have been retaken, and leaving Of these eight, five were captured in the woods about four miles from Chattanooga. As was afterwards ascertained, these fire bad laid in the woods during the say time, making a fire to keep themselves comfortable and traveling by night in the direction of Chattanooga, where they hoped to be able to exchange their prison garb for citizens' clothing. These five men were discovered in a sort of valley or gorge among the hills, about four miles from Chattanoga. When discovered, two were asleep, and the other three sitting around the fire. The guards surrounded them, and told them to surrender. One of the convicts started up, but seeing that resistance was useless, he gave himself up with the rest. Three more convicts were also captured about a mile from Stevenson, Alabama, so that there are now only ten at large. As it is thought probable that some of these ten may make their way in this direction, we give the names of all who have not been recaptured, with the exception of one which we have not been able to obtain, as follows: Ira Tramble, Smith Gooch, Thos. Howard, Robert Kelly alias Mailigan, Charles Seymour, Richard Johnson, Sam Van Leer, Jas. Brown and Thomas Brown. Of all the convicts who were captured, we are informed that only two had ceeded in obtaining citizens' clother.

We stated in a former article that it was surmised by the authorities here, before full particulars were obtained, that the guards had, perhaps, been taking "too much Christmas." This proves not to have been the case, and the grards are said to have done all that could have been done nuder the circumstances. | And though they were assisted by the two convicts outside, the fact that a large number of convicts rushed on two men in a body, would of itself prevent them from doing more than they did. The guard at the mines has been strengthened and other precantions have been taken to prevent a repatition of the scene we have above described. The ring-leaders in the affair have all been recaptured, and as sixty convicts were employed before there are now fifty, while there is a good prospect that the other ten will soon be taken.

The State vs. William Lellyelt-Acquittal of the Defendant, This case was argued yesterday morning before Esquires Wilkinson, Paul and Albert. Gov. Brown defended the accused at some length, arguing that from the nature of the evidence brought before the court, the accused should be discharged. W. A. Russell, of the firm of Kennedy & Russell, of your city, sent me one dozen of your Hungarian Balsam of Life, which I have been using for my ungs; and I take pleasure in stating you that I have been more benefitted by his preparation of yours than by ALL the medicines I have ever used before. I gave three bottles to a lady of our town who was threatened with consumption; she has a very favorable opinion of the virtues of Balsam. Another of the bottles gave to one of my friends who had a se-vere cough, and he has since called on me for more of the Hungarian Balsam, but I had none to spare, and am out of it now myself. Please send me two dozen more,
